In co-operation with Small Business Economics Journal:

Conference on National Systems of Entrepreneurship

November 20-21, 2014 · ZEW in Mannheim · Germany

Organised by ZEW in co-operation with Indiana University and the University of Augsburg

National Systems of Entrepreneurship (NSE) are fundamental resource allocation systems driven by opportunity pursuit of individuals through the creation of new ventures. Opportunities for venture creation and its outcomes are regulated by country-specific institutions. In contrast to the institutional emphasis of the National Systems of Innovation (NSI) frameworks, where institutions engender and regulate action, National Systems of Entrepreneurship (NSE) are driven by individuals who act within and interact with an institutional frame. This approach differs from the traditional entrepreneurship literature, where institutions are largely silent.
